

Journey with a Roadmap

Very few journeys are made on a straight road at a steady speed. There are twists, turns, bumps, and detours. There are times we need to slow down, pick up speed, stop to check directions, or replenish our energies. But, if we are clear about the destination, we can chart milestones along the way and celebrate successes as we advance to our destination.

Desired Outcome: A high-performing public health system delivering the essential services and helping create healthier communities.

How can you enable your employees to participate in the journey to a high-performing organization?

Do you know the terrain?

Can you stay the course?

Do you celebrate intermediate success?
